Bees missing is like the loss of nicotinoids which are found in pesticides, has been identified by some scientists to be a alarming collapse in bee colonies across the UK and northern Europe.

It's not forget how important wild bees are in our garden as vital pollinators to our co-system.

The role of bees is extremely important to our kind's ability to feed the population, so it is vital that we do all that we can to help support the bee population to recover.

I am urging the European Environment Agency to reassess the safety of all neonicotinoid pesticide products.

I would like the European Environment Agency to suspend all neonicotinoid registrations until there is a better understanding on how to manage the risks, and require labels so that consumers can identify these products and other

Councillors are responsible for planning policy

WITH reference to the article, "Boris adding to housing pressure, claims head of planning"

Ms Humphrey obviously doesn't get it yet. Since the departure of the divisive former Chief Executive, Mr David Hill, it is Guildford Borough councillors who are responsible for the control of planning policy, not officers.

Since when did the rules governing the responsibilities of senior council employees change to permit an unelected senior planning officer to talk to the press to describe how they think Guildford Borough planning policy should respond in the face of the bluff and bluster from Boris, in order to scare us into accepting a massive pro-housing growth strategy, much of the thinking behind which was developed by the planning team under Ms Humphrey's control during Mr Hill's regime, that will result in an increase of 30% of housing in the borough?

Personally, I think the leader of the council should tell Ms Humphrey to curtail her utterances in public, offer her professional advice in private to elected councillors, and let them decide what the council leader, not Ms Humphrey, should communicate to borough residents in the face of Boris' comments.
